Nazi Revolt Nipped as Hitler's Aids Slay Leaders in Overthrow Attempt lice when he resisted arrest as a conspirator. Roehm was regarded as the most extreme leader of the radical Nazis; von Schleicher was the extreme reactionary who favored the restoration of the monarchy.

Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen, the man who two weeks ago warned Hitler that a second revolution led by extremists was impending, was taken into "protective custody" but soon released.

Not only was Roehm thrown out—to die—but Captain Karl Ernst, leader of the storm troops at Berlin was summarily disposed.

Hitler at once appointed as his new commander of the storm troops Victor Lutze who issued this appeal:

"Storm troop comrades and leaders and men: "Der Fuehrer (Hitler) has called me to his side as chief of staff. The confidence in me thereby must and will be justified by myself through unbounded fidelity to the leader and measureless devotion to national socialism and thereby to our people.

"When, some 12 years ago, I for the first time became a leader of a storm troop unit I placed three virtues at the head of all my actions and demanded them from the storm troops. These three virtues made the storm troops great and today when, at a fateful hour, I am privileged to serve my leader in an important position, they shall now, more than ever, become the guiding star for the whole storm troop."

"Unquestioning fidelity; the sharpest discipline; the sacrificial spirit of bravery.

"Thus we, who are National Socialists, will march together. I am convinced it can then be only a march to freedom.

"Long live the leader; long live our people!"

Among the Storm Troop leaders who were shot dead were Premier Hermann Goering of Prussia announced that he was carrying out drastic police action on Hitler's personal orders against Nazi storm troops leaders attempting to force a second German revolution.

His measures, he said, were extended in two directions—against absolute reactionaries and absolute radicals.

News Writers Wanted to Watch Dispatches

Goering told foreign correspondents:

"In order that no false news might get out, I have ordered all communications with foreign countries stopped for the present until you hear my statement which gives you the unadulterated truth, but I warn you seriously not to let your imagination run wild."

"For weeks we have known that a certain circle in the Storm Troop leaders has been attempting to mislead the brave and honest Storm Troop men to a path leading to revolution."

"That would necessitate a led to the overthrowing of the state."

"The chief of the secret police and my police organs have watched these men minutely and know what they had in mind, namely a second German revolution."

"Der Fuehrer (the leader, i. e., Hitler) is determined to make an example and to let the whole world know that whoever raises his hand against the Reich (the present government of Germany) loses his head."

"Oppose Hitler and Lose Your Head!"

"Roehm and co-workers thought they could bring pressure to bear upon Der Fuehrer but he got ahead of them. Der Fuehrer has had Roehm arrested and put into jail where he will await judgment."

"Many group and upper group leaders (of the storm troops) also have been seized and will await their day of judgment."

"Der Fuehrer ordered me to represent him in this crisis which I shall carry out without flinching."

"Even as Goering made his announcement, the streets of Berlin were being patrolled by steel-clad policemen armed with rifles."

"Hitler's chief special guard, the black-shirted Schutz Staffel, were to be seen on duty at the various headquarters of the brown-shirted Nazi storm troops."

"Prussian Chief of Police, Hans, told the Prussian minister, 'The Schutz Staffel and police have everywhere taken charge of party headquarters.'"

"The storm troops have not offered resistance. They were quietly disbanded. They were quietly disbanded."

"I have naturally also taken measures against those circles in any way endanger the existence of the state and have turned against the reactionaries, whether left or right."

"The storm troop army is brave and we must show it in what way it has been trained."

"There is no cause for any uneasiness. Some storm troop leaders, overwhelmed and dependent upon Hitler, have committed suicide."

"Some have had to be shot when they offered resistance."

"They, however, constitute only a small part."

German Catholics Defend Jews and Defy Nazis

By Associated Press
Berlin, June 30—Charges that the Roman Catholic church in Nazi Germany is a victim of suppression and injustice and that priests are being persecuted were made today in a fiery episcopal letter.

Drawn up by Germany's cardinal bishops at their annual meeting at Fulda early in June, the letter was sent to all Catholic clergymen.

The document is unusually frank in deprecating participation of the Catholic clergy in politics since the advent of the Nazis.

DEFEENSE OF JEWS
Discussing Nazi "paganism" plans for a new national church and the alleged plan to replace the old sacraments by a new one, the letter says:

"Christ's blood of grace cannot be replaced by an alleged sacrament of the Nordic blood which his holy church, almost daily, has poured out for the people."

Opposing Nazi anti-Semitism, the document says the ten commandments hold for the Jews as well as for others, and continues:

"We solemnly protest against spreading Nazi propaganda in our fatherland and protect against all attacks and insinuations being made by their members against God, against Jesus and his holy church, almost daily in written and spoken word."

"We emphatically protest against an attempt to undermine church Christianity also, because this is a deliberate attempt against the expressed intention of the government which if successful will destroy all hopes for security in our state and for a happy future for our suffering people."

The state's authority will be broken down when it no longer rests on the authority of God."

DEFENSE OF MOCKERY
The letter declared the bishops would not keep silence in the face of such a menace as "in newspapers, magazines, and pamphlets a word picture of the church and its services being publicly assailed and ridiculed. Christ, our savior, being mocked, and God's eternal mystery being offended."

The plight of the Catholic press was vividly sketched, and the letter said:

"While pagans are spreading their teachings, our Catholic press no longer has the freedom to discuss the great problems of these times and stand against Christianity and the church."

ROSENBERG BOOK SCORED
The book of Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosopher dictator of the Third Reich, "Myths of the Twentieth Century," was condemned, the letter said.

"We cannot be silent when such a book is filled with flagrant misrepresentations undermining faith in God and the Christian religion and respect for the Catholic Church."

"Many localities Catholic youth are being persecuted, when it does nothing else but give public testimony to its faith in Christ and loyalty to church and state, for which state protection was assured."

"We Catholics, however, are pushing aside and destroying the Christian faith living among our people."

The statement of Baldur von Schirach, head of the Nazi youth movement, that "he who does the Catholic, is neither Protestant nor Catholic, but a German" was assailed.

"We bishops say religious conviction is not a coat to be worn or laid aside at convenience."

Charges that the Catholic clergy pursuing political aims, the letter said, are designed to undermine the church's position.

The letter referred bitterly to the treatment of Cardinal von Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, at the hands of Nazis, asserting: "We are being offered in the most unseemly manner publicly."

Premier Herman Wilhelm Goering on orders from Chancellor Hitler assumed charge of the revolt situation in Germany. His first act was warning that all Hitler's would lose their heads.

A series of dramatic events in Nazi Germany in the last fortnight preceded the swift move today by the regime of Chancellor Hitler to

Among these events, all believed highly important in bringing the situation in the Reich to a head, are the following:

1. The presently reported imminence of a disbandment of the storm troops, the Nazi elite troops, whose efforts were important in the fight for power and following his accession to the chancellorship.

2. The arrest by secret police of Edgar Jung, publicist, who assembled material for Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen's Marburg speech June 17. This speech was the boldest criticism of the Nazi regime by a person in authority since Hitler became Chancellor.

3. The role played by Secretary of State Hjalmar Schacht, who bluntly rejected as fallacious the reasoning advanced by the Reich for its complete suspension of payments on long-term and medium-term debt.

4. The meeting of Premier Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Hitler at Venice. On that historic occasion, it is understood, it was decided that Hitler would resist toward Hitler's practices, which had been a source of many both have Fascist governments and also convinced Hitler that he was acting along lines dictated by reality, rather than by idealism.

5. The Von Papen speech at Munich, although suppressed, was approved by President von Hindenburg and widened a cabinet rift.

ASTOR-FRENCH WEDDING THRILLS NEWPORT SOCIETY

John Jacob Astor III, bearer of a brilliant family name took Miss Ellen Tuck French as his bride this afternoon at four o'clock in old historic Trinity Church, Newport. While members of the 400 and regular parishioners packed the church, curious throngs gathered outside to watch the arrival and departure of the world known bridal party. Here they are shown at yesterday's rehearsal. (Picture from International News Service.)

AND THE CHURCH—The interior of Trinity Church, Newport, where the marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold St. George Burrill. Besides 200 invited guests, the church was packed with regular parishioners, who were present without cards following regular custom of the church. A tall wine-glass pulpit, standing squarely in the aisle almost hid Astor and his bride from view while the marriage was performed. A simple ring service followed but the word "obey" did not appear in the service. Miss French wore an old fashioned wedding dress with train. Insert shows bride and groom.

HER SISTER—Miss Virginia French, sister of Ellen Tuck, was one of the bridal party. Miss French's wedding was the climax to weeks of gossip following her engagement.

MOTHER OF GROOM AND BOXER HUSBAND — Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, mother of the bridegroom, and her boxer husband, Enzo Fiermonte had not made public their decision whether they would attend the wedding at the last minute. Miss Ellen Gillespie, former fiancée of Astor, was not there, as she sailed today for Europe on the Leviathan.

FATHER OF BRIDE—Francis O. French, father of Ellen Tuck French (left) and the Rev. Edward C. Travers, who assisted in the ceremony, arrived in Newport yesterday for the rehearsal. French gave the bride away today. Up until the last few years anyway, he had the distinction of being the only member of the Harvard Club ever to drive a taxi for a living.

HALF BROTHERS—John Jacob Astor, III (left), and his half-brother William K. Dick, Jr., on their way to the church yesterday for last minute preparations. Newport everywhere was in a state of high tension waiting for the wedding.

CURIOUS WATCH WEDDING PREVIEW—While John Jacob Astor III and a "substitute" bride, Miss Lesley Bogert, were rehearsing for the wedding, a curious group gathered outside historic Trinity Church, Newport, and sought to catch glimpses of the bridal party. Following the old custom that the bride should not walk up the aisle until her wedding day, Miss Ellen Tuck French sat in a pew with her mother and watched Astor march with her friend, Miss Bogert. Several rehearsals were necessary before the bridal party was satisfied that the ceremony would run smoothly.

FUTURE HOME OF BRIDE AND GROOM—To Chetwood, impressive Astor Newport home, young Astor will take his bride after their honeymoon. He plans to work hard after his marriage in several business ventures and live modestly on an income of $8000 a year. Wedding presents, estimated at more than a million dollars, should help the bride and bridegroom in their housekeeping.

LAST CHANCE ON CIRCUS TREAT

Today is the last day of the circus, and, therefore, the last chance for members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club to see the matinee show at Andrew square in South Boston for half price.

All members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club will be admitted to the circus matinee at the cut rate on display of their membership cards and badges, under arrangements made by the Big Chief.

Through the co-operation of the board of directors of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, second largest circus in the world, and the Boston Evening American, members of the X-9 Club were invited to attend any matinee performance this week.

All the members have to do is go to the main entrance, show your X-9 badge or membership card and for the sum of 25 cents you will receive a grandstand ticket.

Under the Big Top you will witness one of the greatest spectacles ever presented in Boston's circus history. Clyde L. Brown, world famous for his death-defying act, will battle 40 lions in a huge cage.

New members don't forget to take in this event, the best the Big Chief has yet been able to arrange for.

Government Should Enlist Business Leaders in National Recovery Program

WITH Congress out of the way President Roosevelt has a large responsibility to make the variety of measures adopted under the "New Deal" workable.

Economic recovery would be fostered by a revival of faith and confidence.

Through first-hand contacts with practical business leaders Mr. Roosevelt could make short cuts to prosperity.

Co-operation with business would not only yield tangible economic results, but would also end the phase of paralyzing bewilderment and doubt with which practical executives view the experiments of the President's economic advisers.

Already clothed with immense power, Mr. Roosevelt need not fear the arrogance of business men, who are already covered more than is good for the country.

Under the new setup the President is in position to tell each group how it can be helped.

Honest business and financial leaders would welcome a first-hand exposition from the President of the roles which they may be expected to play.

Surely, as an experienced administrator, Mr. Roosevelt appreciates America's natural resources in business leaders and does not intend permanently to junk so precious a national asset.

Contrasting the inexperience of the Brain Trust here with the competent union between business and government in England, William Randolph Hearst, now traveling abroad, in an interview in the Sunday Express at London, significantly said:

"Someone has said that England always muddles through crises. That, I think, is a ridiculous statement. No individual, no nation, muddles through. They get through by intelligent thought and sound action. When the crisis in England became sufficiently severe the business men of England, the statesmen got together and devised a co-operative plan and pulled the nation through, and that co-operation has kept the situation continually improving and, I believe, will keep it improving.

"We should exercise the same intelligence in the United States. If the politicians and the business men will get together there and form a sound program the United States will speedily come out of its depression and assume its normal prosperity. . . . I think if [President Roosevelt] would dismiss all the theorists and experimentalists, all the impractical professors and visionary doctrinaires and co-operate with the intelligent business men of the country, as England has done, the United States would speedily come out of its difficulties."

As Mr. Hearst has suggested, the Administration at Washington should rediscover the builders and the doers.

Achievement inevitably rests on practical talent—and it is national suicide to attempt to cast aside demonstrated leadership. Mr. Roosevelt will find that there are socially conscious men of business who are ready to advise him unselfishly and to make attainable his own human longings for social justice and a higher average standard of living.

Without the active co-operation of the known prosperity makers the return of good times remains only a hazy aspiration.

With his charming personality Mr. Roosevelt without fanfare can remobilize the key men in the American economic structure to help him win the battle against economic stagnation and chaos.

Conceding the imperfections in men, the wise Alexander Hamilton, in a letter to Robert Morris, wrote:

"No wise statesman will reject the good from an apprehension of the ill. The truth is, in human affairs there is no good, pure and unmixed; every advantage has two sides; and wisdom consists in availing themselves of the good, and guarding as much as possible against the bad."

THUS far the Administration has NOT had the full benefits of wholehearted business co-operation because seeking business baiters, in a whispering campaign, have sought to destroy the influence of outstanding men who succeeded in the open competitive arena.

In the over-concentration on business evils politicians have tended fallaciously to assume that business itself was evil.

When business and government learn how to live with each other the riddle of the depression will have been solved.

Be Cautious in Water

One of the most beneficial of sports is this year strangely bringing tragedy into many homes.

The toll of drownings is mounting alarmingly. Few in comparison to the whole are the drownings which could not be prevented by the simple exercise of caution and common sense.

Precautions urged by the American National Red Cross should be well learned by everyone who goes on or in the water. These are:

Swimming should not be undertaken sooner than two hours after meals.

Swimming should not be undertaken in the heat of the day. Boats should not be filled over the capacity marked thereon. Towing boats, loaded with passengers, by motor or sail boats, should be prohibited.

A non-swimmer should take out a boat only when accompanied by a swimmer.

Lone swimming often results in fatalities; swim in pairs, at least.

If you are subject to cramps, avoid long swims; stay close to shore.

No swimmer should swim far from shore, unless accompanied by a boat.

It is dangerous to dive into unknown waters. Enter the water first and determine the depth; be on your guard for sunken trees, wreckage, etc. One diver should not enter the water until the one before him has come up.

Keep cool, above all things, and keep your head when danger threatens.

Nose Thumbing—

Mackerel for Needy

Canning may solve the problem of Gloucester's surplus mackerel—and help the needy.

A federal appropriation is urged to purchase the 6,000,000 excess pounds of mackerel lying here this year, to be canned in this manner for the jobs.

The idea of helping the needy and Gloucester fishermen in one move is excellent.

Gloucester mackerel is an old culinary institution on the New England coast. There are old-time residents who swear they would rather eat a canned mackerel than a fresh one.

Why cannot the federal relief administration distribute even fresh mackerel to be home-canned? Household experts declare the plan feasible.

Distributive channels, to avoid competition with New England's established fish markets, could be found.

Six million pounds of toothsome mackerel is too big a delicacy to be lost by default—in the face of Yankee ingenuity and with families needy.

Hart, 80, Able Leader

Congratulations to Albert Bunnell Hart, professor emeritus of government at Harvard, who will be eighty years old tomorrow.

Professor Hart, despite his years, continues to be one of our ablest citizens. His wide field of influence remains undiminished. As the Jewish Advocate remarks editorially:

"Professor Hart has done more than any other American to acquaint the American people with the life, ideals and principles of the founder and first President of the United States."

Professor Hart, it will be recalled, at request of the President of the United States and the Governor of Massachusetts, served as national historian of the United States Commission and chairman of the Massachusetts Commission, through the George Washington Bicentennial year.

Our Business Gaining

Business in Massachusetts continues to forge ahead. Department of Commerce report on retail sales in the Bay State for half of June shows a 10 per cent increase as compared with a year ago.

This cheering showing follows a retail sales gain of 9 1/2 per cent for the full month of May as compared with same month in 1933.

These figures are compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston in co-operation with the Department of Commerce from returns filed by 864 firms.

The breadth of the survey and the reputation of the agencies that made it are sufficient testimony as to its accuracy. And give the lie to those who tell us conditions are not measurably improved.

Daily Bible Text "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is a brawler, and who is deceived thereby?"—Proverbs xx, 1.

Mr. Powers' amusing cartoon above is the result of an incident reported in new dispatches which happened in a London court recently when Lady Cavendish, the former Adele Astaire, American actress, greeted her friend, Tillie Losch, who was seeking a divorce. She explained that this was an old American custom, and was not to be taken too seriously by our said British cousin. The judge agreed. Mr. Powers, with admirable restraint, left out the British attitude toward the war debts, but you can fill that in for yourself.

Education Faces Test . . . By James T. Williams

All educational roads from the north, south, east, and west lead this week to the Federal City, where the National Education Association is holding its seventy-second annual meeting.

Twelve thousand members of this vast voluntary organization of educators are expected to meet in the city of Washington, D. C., to discuss the problems of education in the United States.

It is high time to take thought for education's tomorrow in this country. The economic depression has delivered a body blow to the American system of education. Compelled by decreasing revenues to reduce expenditures, state, county and local governments have either gone unpaid or have been subjected to reductions in salaries and wages.

Public schools all over the country have been closed, school terms have been shortened, teachers have either gone unpaid or have been subjected to reductions in salaries and wages. The result is a system of education that is a shambles.

This system, as President Roosevelt has truly said, is an inheritance from the days when the country was a nation of pioneers. It is a system that is out of place today.

Human Side of the News; Prophets Old and New

By Edwin C. Hill

On that night recently when Alfred P. Sloan's 300 prophesies were being read, the world might expect and look forward to in the next decade and the next century, a lady just 70 was talking to reporters in New York City about a man who, in 1887, foretold many of the things which are coming to pass in these times.

He was her husband, Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," a prophetic novel on an economic theme which has been surpassed in sales only by "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Bellamy was neither a Socialist nor a social reformer and yet most of his theories and doctrines have been appropriated by those who since his time have advocated a radical change in the Capitalistic system. Even Technocracy, that fetish of a year or so ago, borrowed largely from the dreams of Edward Bellamy.

As one remembers, the Technocrats were to do away with money and pay wages in eggs. In Bellamy's Utopia there was to be no money either, the individual being paid according to his merit and the form of currency a central store.

"Looking Backward" told the story of a man who went to sleep in 1887 and awakened in the year 2000 A. D.

A Dr. Lestie explained to him all that had happened in the United States during the one hundred and thirteen years that he was sleeping. He was told that the world was now in the critical state of the nineteenth century.

Dr. Lestie went on to tell him how in 2000 A. D. was now the "shrewd fellow" of 1887 came to permit the world to be a better place than it is now, and how the world was now a better place than it is now.
